WHAT IS MENTORING?

In The Odyssey (written by Homer, a Greek poet), Odysseus (known as Ulysses in the Latin translation) was preparing to fight the Trojan War when he realized he would be leaving behind his only son and heir, Telemachus. Since the child was young and wars typically dragged on for years (the Trojan War lasted 10 years), Ulysses entrusted Telemachus' care and education to Mentor, his wise, trusted friend. Today, mentoring is a process in which an experienced individual helps another person develop his or her goals and skills through a series of time-limited, confidential, one-on-one conversations and other learning activities. Mentors also draw benefits from the mentoring relationship. As a mentor, you will have the opportunity to share your wisdom and experiences, evolve your own thinking, develop a new relationship, and deepen your skills as a mentor.

KEY MENTORING SKILLS

The mentoring literature shows that mentors and protégés tend to employ certain mentoring skills. Research also indicates that these skills can be developed, and that particular skills or competencies seem to result in the most successful mentoring relationships. Linda Phillips-Jones, Ph.D., mentoring expert and author of The New Mentors & Protégés: How to Succeed with the New Mentoring Partnerships, and numerous guides and tools for mentors and protégés, studied hundreds of mentor-protégé relationships and developed a set of critical mentoring skills and competencies. The key mentoring skills discussed here are adapted from her work.

Key Mentoring Skills

- ✓ Listening Actively
- ✓ Building Trust
- ✓ Determining Goals and Building Capacity
- ✓ Encouraging & Inspiring

You will likely recognize the skills outlined here and may have experience employing them successfully in other relationships. As you progress through the mentoring relationship, try to employ these skills whenever possible.

STAGES OF FORMAL MENTORING RELATIONSHIPS

Like most relationships, mentoring relationships progress through stages. Your formal mentoring relationship will likely reflect four developmental stages with each stage forming an inherent part of the next:

- ✓ Building the Relationship
- ✓ Exchanging Information and Setting Goals
- ✓ Working Towards Goals/Deepening the Engagement
- ✓ Ending the Formal Mentoring Relationship and Planning for the Future

THE ETIQUETTE OF MENTORING DO'S AND DON'TS

There is an unspoken code of behaviour that exists in mentoring relationships. Unfortunately, since it's unspoken, both participants in the mentoring relationship, unknowingly and unintentionally, may end up doing the 'wrong thing.' All individuals come to a new relationship with different styles of communication, different points of view and different expectations. Working in a new relationship with someone very different from you is a skill. As with any skill, the more you practice, the easier it gets. At the very minimum, relationship skills required for mentoring include, showing kindness, practicing patience and flexibility, and conveying a sense of appreciation for the individual's accomplishments. Following are some additional suggestions for mentors:

DO

- ✓ Respect your mentee's time as much as your own.
- ✓ Be explicit about the 'norms' for your meetings and your own needs and limits (e.g., time, style of interfacing, etc.).
- ✓ Always ask if you can make a suggestion or offer feedback.
- ✓ Tell your mentee that you don't expect them to follow all of your suggestions.
- ✓ Expect your mentee to move toward his/her goals; not yours.
- ✓ Express appreciation to any help your mentee gives you.
- ✓ Keep the relationship on a professional basis.
- ✓ Recognize and work through conflicts in a respectful way; invite discussions of differences.
- ✓ Keep the door open for your mentee to contact you in the future—if that is your wish.

DON'T

- ✓ Assume that your schedule always has priority.
- ✓ Make your mentee guess or learn by trial and error, about the ground rules for your meetings.
- ✓ Automatically give advice or criticism.
- ✓ Assume your advice will be followed.
- ✓ Expect a clone of yourself.
- ✓ Take your mentee for granted or assume the she/he doesn't need positive reinforcement.
- ✓ Move too quickly into a personal friendship, if at all.
- ✓ Avoid discussion of inappropriate subjects and forcing your solutions in conflicts.
- ✓ End the relationship on a sour note.
